

Traveling UXO Shuts Down London Landmarks

Posted At : January 21, 2017 8:31 AM | Posted By : Admin

Related Categories: WWII Era UXO Finds

London, England The Royal Navy and Metropolitan Police shut down Waterloo Bridge, Westminster Bridge and Victoria Embankment in central London while a WWII German SD bomb was towed along the river to Tilbury, Essex, where it was safely detonated. Police responded to the river for the reported ordnance find, dropped during WWII.

According to the Port of London Authority, the WWII era German bomb measured approximately 2ft long. The nearby train station was also shutdown as the operation was carried out in the area adjacent to the Houses of Parliament.